

abolition of the legislative council

Queensland is unique in that it has the only unicameral State Parliament in Australia. It abolished its Upper House in 1922. Traditionally in the Westminster system of government, Parliaments are bicameral, having a Lower House and an Upper House. However, Upper Houses have been abolished in a number of other countries, including New Zealand (1950), Denmark (1953), Sweden (1970), and in the American state of Nebraska in 1934.

the first queensland parliament

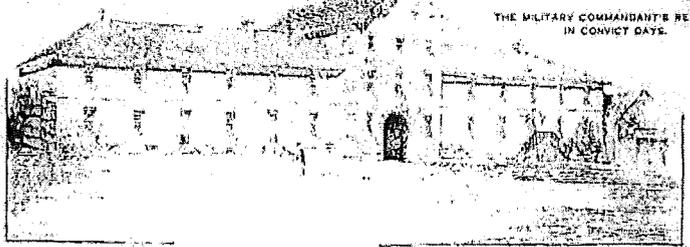

Queensland's first Governor, Sir George Ferguson Bowen, GCMG. Photo: John Oxley Library.

The First Houses of Parliament, Queen Street.

Originally the Military and Convict Barracks. Through the Archway was the Military Commandant's Residence (see inset), the Author's birthplace. No really good representation of this interesting old relic of convict days appears to have been preserved, but this picture is approximately accurate, and was drawn by Mr. E. P. Treweek, of the Public Works Department, from old and inferior representations of the structure which appear in photographs of early Brisbane.

THE MILITARY COMMANDANT'S RESIDENCE IN CONVICT DAYS.

The First Houses of Parliament, the Military and Convict Barracks, now the site of the Queen Adelaide Building. Picture drawn by Mr. E. P. Treweek, Public Works Department. Photo: John Oxley Library.

Governor Bowen had some difficulty in attracting men to sit in the new Legislative Council, noting that he could secure only 11 Councillors to sit in the Legislative Council 'for all the more active and influential politicians desire seats in the Lower House'.

Bowen to Secretary of State,
the Duke of Newcastle, 21 May 1860.

On 6 June 1859, Queensland was constituted as a separate colony from New South Wales by Letters Patent signed in London. A bicameral parliament was provided with a Legislative Council appointed by the Governor and a Legislative Assembly elected on a franchise that favoured property owners.

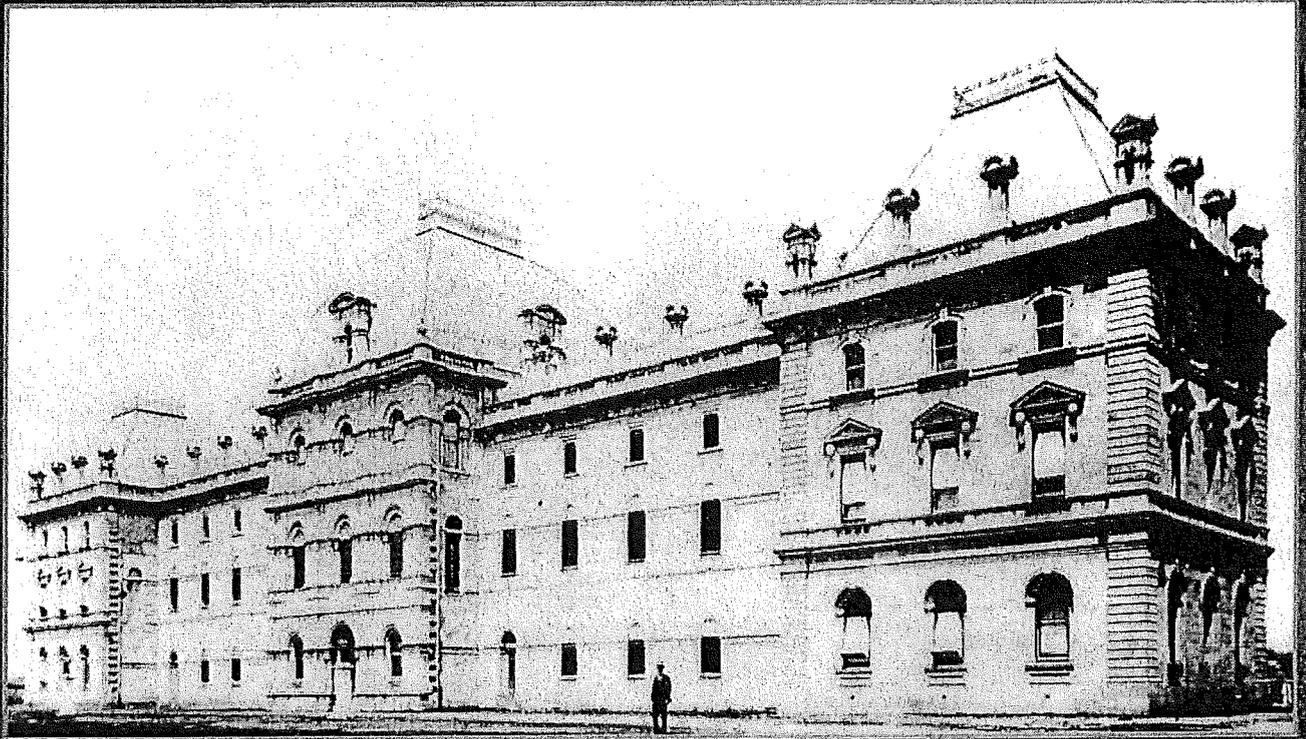

The first Governor, Sir George Ferguson Bowen GCMG, appointed an Interim Executive Council, which consisted of the first Premier of Queensland, Robert G W Herbert, Ratcliff Pring QC, and Robert R Mackenzie, to administer the colony.

The first Parliament, consisting of 26 elected Members of the Legislative Assembly and 11 nominees appointed by first Governor Bowen to the Legislative Council, met on the 22 May 1860 in the old convict barracks building in Queen Street, Brisbane.

The initial Councillors were to be appointed for five years with all subsequent appointments to be made for life. The local Courier of 3 July 1860 was less than complimentary about the Council membership: 'It is simply composed by gentlemen highly respectable no doubt, whose qualifications for legislative Office appear to be summed up in the fact that no constituency would have them. . . . Our "Second Estate" is merely an arbitrary selection from the ranks. No feats of arms, triumphs of intellect, or deeds of patriotism afford reasons for the choice.'

Further, one commentator observed that because all the best men of Queensland chose to sit in the lower chamber, he feared the Upper House could 'become a refuge for the politically destitute, a benevolent asylum for the reception of authors of rejected addresses'.

running battles

Parliament House, 1869. (George Street wing). The facade was added in 1877 for sun control. The building was extended to include the Alice Street wing in 1891.

Denigration of the Council and its members was frequent among the scribes of the Moreton Bay Courier:

"... brainless gohemouches, political drones, servile renegades" and "needy vampires waiting to suck the nation's blood".

Moreton Bay Courier,
12 August 1861

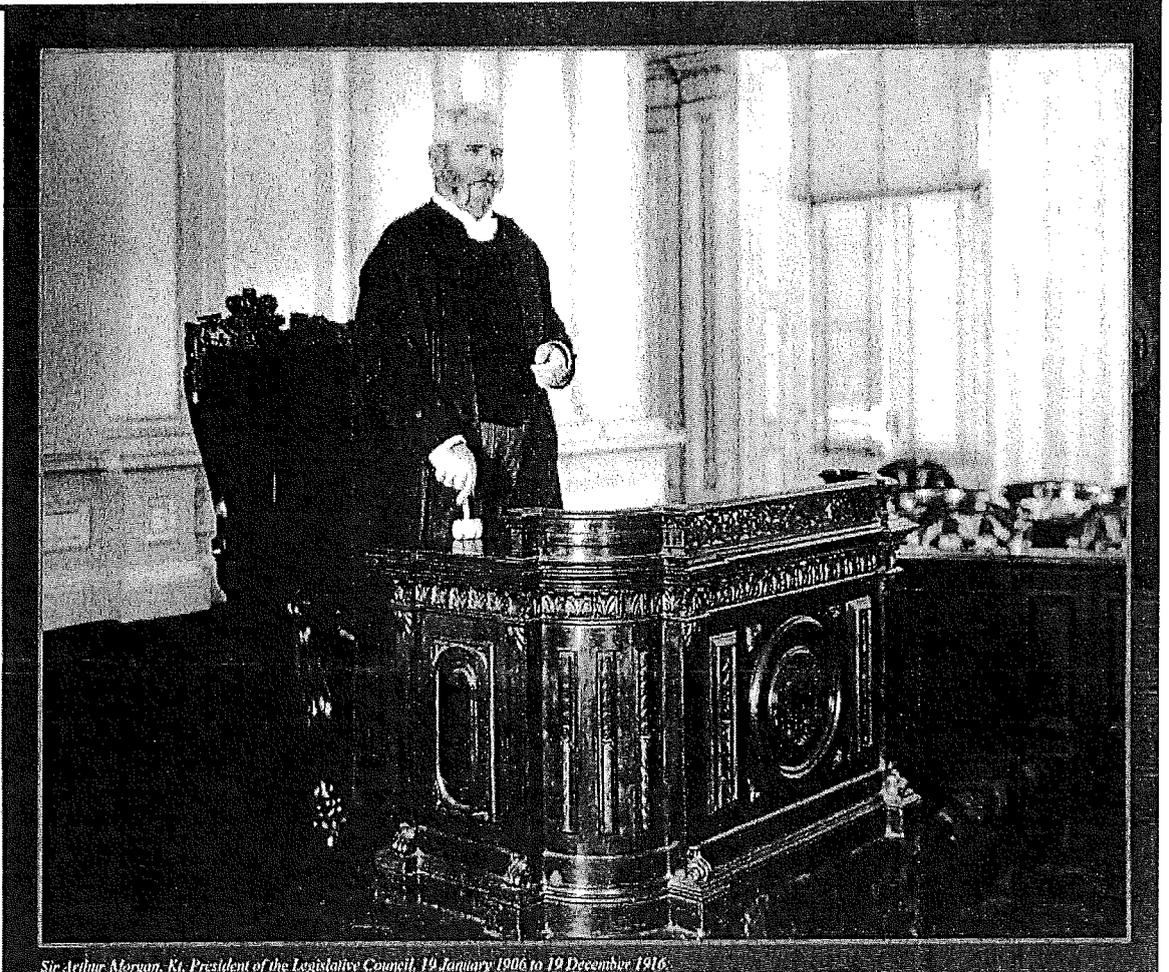

Public debate about the problematic role of the Legislative Council remained a feature of colonial Queensland.

One of many major battles between the Assembly and the Council occurred in October 1885 when the Council sought to amend budget legislation and insisted that the Assembly accept its amendments.

It was then decided that opinion be obtained from the British Privy Council on the relative rights and powers of both Houses with respect to money Bills. In 1886 the Privy Council determined that the Legislative Council did not have the same powers as the Legislative Assembly to amend money Bills. The Legislative Council did not accept the ruling, thereby setting the stage for further disagreement with the Assembly.

A Chamber of wealth and property was being challenged like never before by an Assembly increasingly representative of electors who were facing tough economic times. The 1890s saw the rise of a labour movement with supporters prepared to strike for better wages and conditions, as seen by the 1891 and 1894 shearers' strikes.

labor calls for abolition

Sir Arthur Morgan, Rt. President of the Legislative Council, 19 January 1906 to 19 December 1916.

The Parliamentary Bills Referendum Act 1908 was described by Attorney-General Hon JW Blair as possibly the most important to have been brought before the House at that time. The Act proposed changes to the Constitution to enable a Bill that had twice been rejected by the Legislative Council be put to a referendum of the voters.

With the establishment of the Labor Party in the 1890s came more calls for the reform of the Council. Several Bills were introduced between 1893-1908 to provide for the election of Legislative Council members, but for various reasons were never passed.

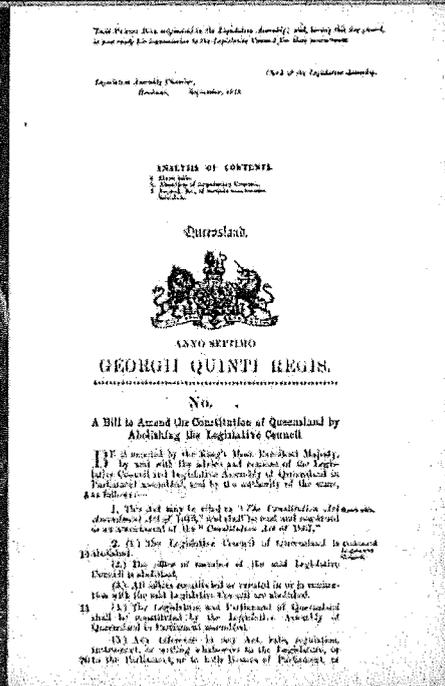

In August 1906 a Labor member of the Legislative Assembly moved that a Bill be introduced to abolish the Legislative Council because (1) it would be a positive economic step to take and (2) the Legislative Council had become a useless institution. The motion was not carried by the Lower House. However, during 1908, two important pieces of legislation were passed. The first was the Constitution Act Amendment Act 1908 to remove the need to obtain a two-thirds majority of both Houses to alter provisions of the Queensland Constitution, including changes to the Legislative Council. The second piece of legislation was the Parliamentary Bills Referendum Act 1908.

The latter Act proved to be the trigger for the 1917 referendum.

labor throws down the gauntlet

Mr Thomas Joseph Ryan, Premier of Queensland. Photo: John Oxley Library

Constitution Act Amendment Bill 1915

The very fact that these various Legislative Councils in the different States are based either upon a narrow franchise, or on nominated Chambers necessarily makes them bodies which are not truly representative of the public opinion of the great masses of the people. They are the relics of feudalism ... and ... have now altogether outlived their usefulness.

Premier TJ Ryan,
Second-Reading Speech,
Constitution Act Amendment Bill,
17 November 1915,
Queensland Parliamentary Debates

The Ryan Labor Government came to power in 1915 with a large majority in the Legislative Assembly but with only three members in the Legislative Council. Part of the Labor Party's 'fighting platform' was to abolish the Legislative Council.

The Legislative Council continued to be a thorn in the side of this reformist Government. Between May 1915 and December 1918, the Legislative Council rejected, or drastically amended, about 800 Bills, including Bills addressing major reform issues on health, industrial relations, the Criminal Code and local government.

The Labor Government became even more determined that the Legislative Council had to go.

- Two methods for the Council's abolition were proposed –
- stacking the Legislative Council with Labor nominees who would carry measures to abolish the Council; or
 - a majority of voters at a referendum supporting the Council's abolition.

On 12 November 1915, Premier Ryan introduced a Bill entitled A Bill to Amend the Constitution of Queensland by Abolishing the Legislative Council. The Legislative Council rejected the Bill in early December 1915 by 26 votes to 3. The Bill was re-introduced into the Legislative Assembly by Premier Ryan on 14 September 1916 where it was passed but again rejected by the Council by 19 votes to 3.

Since the Bill had been twice rejected by the Council, the way was now open for a referendum of the people on the issue of abolition of the Legislative Council.

1917 referendum doomed

REFERENDUM ON THE ABOLITION OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

CONSTITUTION DEFENCE FUND.

CONTRIBUTIONS URGENTLY REQUIRED.

At a large and representative meeting held in Brisbane on Tuesday, 2nd March 1917, a strong Committee, consisting of—

SIR ROBERT PHILIP,
SIR ALBERT COWLEY,
HON. A. H. WHITTAKER, M.L.C.,
HON. E. W. H. POWLES, M.L.C.,
HON. F. J. LEAHY, M.L.C.,
MR. W. J. MOFFAT,
MR. GEO. HOGAN,

was formed, together with an Honorary Finance Committee, to which the representatives of the printing and commercial industries generally have been appointed for the purpose of securing the success of the present Government in retaining the Legislative Council.

A large sum of money will be required to carry on the campaign between now and polling day, the 5th May, and a further large sum will be required for legal expenses incidental with the action, which a large number of the Council have indicated to order that the contributions may be received here, to be considered a warrant and an authority which would represent the Government.

It is a matter of the utmost urgency of the moment, in those circumstances, that the Government have adopted the compulsory voting law of the Empire of Judicial Electors and a number of I.V.M. inspectors who have in this cause necessarily judgment in the public eye of Australia.

Forward to a future Government in order the control of outside organisations, the members of the House of Representatives through the South of Queensland Government and the leading class of the industrial workers of the country in a spirit of responsible individualism.

CONTRIBUTIONS MAY BE GIVEN AND MADE PAYABLE TO THE HON. TREASURER OF THE FUND—
MR. G. A. MURPHY, 2nd W. CHURCH, Brisbane.

Who will help generously.

(ADVERTISEMENT.)

ELECTORS OF QUEENSLAND.

Referendum Poll on the Question of the Abolition of the Legislative Council.

The decision of the High Court of Australia, delivered to-day, has allowed the REFERENDUM TO BE TAKEN in the above matter. The Referendum POLL on the question of the Abolition of the Legislative Council will therefore be taken on SATURDAY, MAY 5th.

Remember, that voting is compulsory. You must therefore record your votes in accordance with the requirements of the law.

T. J. RYAN,
PREMIER OF QUEENSLAND.

Authorised by Edward G. Theodore, Acting Premier, Brisbane.

Men and Women of Queensland.

To-day is your day to defend your rights.
Don't let the Wreckers rob you of your Paper Parliament.

At the

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL REFERENDUM

the Vote of every loyal, sensible citizen will be cast—

How to Vote To-day.

Put your Cross in the Bottom Square	BALLOT PAPER.	Put your Cross in the Bottom Square
Voting Compulsory: 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.	I Vote for the Bill entitled "A Bill to Amend the Constitution of Queensland by Abolishing the Legislative Council" <input type="checkbox"/> I VOTE AGAINST THE BILL entitled "A Bill to Amend the Constitution of Queensland by Abolishing the Legislative Council" <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Voting Compulsory: 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Every Vote Counts.

Put in lines by means of all parties.

REMEMBER—TWO HOUSES ARE BETTER THAN ONE.

Constitution Defence Committee advertisement
The Brisbane Courier, 4 May 1917, p. 6

Pro-abolition advertisement
The Brisbane Courier, 3 May 1917, p. 2

Anti-abolition advertisement
The Brisbane Courier, 5 May 1917, p. 7

If you own anything at all and especially if you have a husband or a wife, and value your home then it is intensely to your advantage to stand by the Legislative Council.

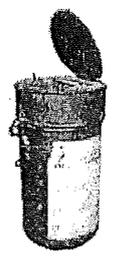

Anti-abolitionist,
The Brisbane Courier,
5 May 1917, p. 5.

Cabinet decided to save money by holding the referendum on the same day as the Federal election on 5 May 1917, together with another referendum about liquor outlets. In hindsight, this may not have been wise.

The endeavour to abolish the Legislative Council by referendum failed. Nearly 61% of the voters were against the proposed Bill to abolish the Council. It seemed that Queenslanders were not yet ready for a single House of Parliament.

However, the defeat of the abolition proposal may have been influenced by a combination of factors as follows:

- Queensland Labor Party members were too busy with Federal election issues (the Federal election being on the same day as the referendum) to do much campaigning for abolition of the Legislative Council, whereas there was an expensive and vigorous campaign by the 'Constitution Defence Committee' against abolition.
- a legal challenge to the validity of the abolition Bill was fought through the courts up until the day before the poll. The High Court finally decided that the referendum could go ahead and that the legal points would be determined later.
- the referendum question was stated in a way that may have been confusing – to vote against the Council the elector had to vote for the Bill.
- to vote for retaining the Council and against the Bill, the voter had to mark the lower square. In the other referendum held on the same day, involving liquor outlets, a vote against reducing the number of outlets also required a mark in the lower square.

A ballot box similar to that used in the 1917 referendum. Ballot box courtesy of the Queensland Electoral Commission.

“swamping” (stacking) the council

Keep the Council—Keep Your Homes —Keep Your Savings Banks Deposits.

If you vote for the Ryan Party in this election you will be voting for the abolition of the Legislative Council. Once the Legislative Council is abolished the Ryan Party will be able to do exactly as it likes.

It will, for instance, be able to put into operation the mad scheme of the Labour Convention, which is to take everything you own; to make it “common property” and to abolish wages so that you will be entirely at the mercy of the Ryan Party.

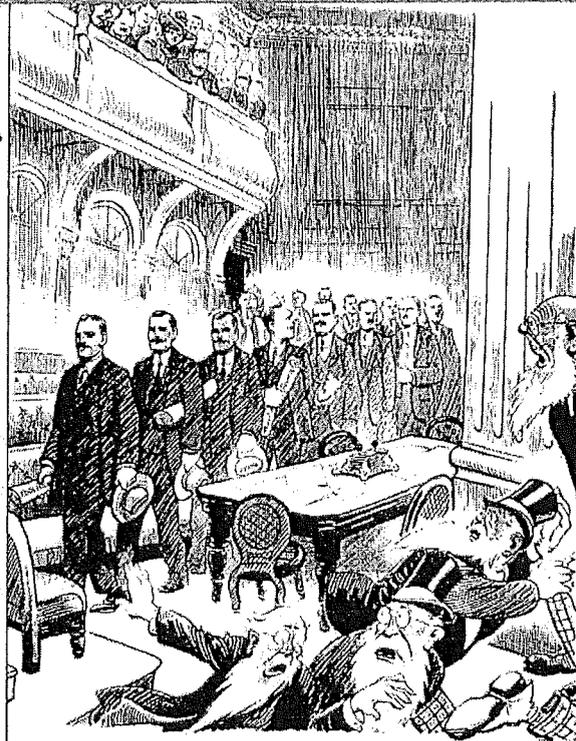

If you are inclined to think this is a laughing matter read the speech of Mr. Demaine, President of the Labour Convention, as reported in the “Daily Standard” of January 29th last, and you will change your views.

Keep the Council—Your Homes—Keep Your Savings Bank Deposits.

Vote National.

It is fully expected that the above notice would be distributed in Brisbane.

The Brisbane Courier, 25 March 1918, p. 2

ENTER THE PEOPLE!

The Worker, 28 February 1920, p. 1

When Parliament resumed in July 1917, the Governor, Sir Hamilton Gould-Adams, agreed to Premier Ryan's request to appoint 13 Labor members to the Legislative Council. The new Labor members had to sign a pledge to support abolition of the Legislative Council.

In March 1918, the Ryan Labor Government was returned to power with an increased majority, holding 48 seats to 24 in the Assembly, thereby claiming that its landslide victory gave it a confirmed mandate to abolish the Legislative Council.

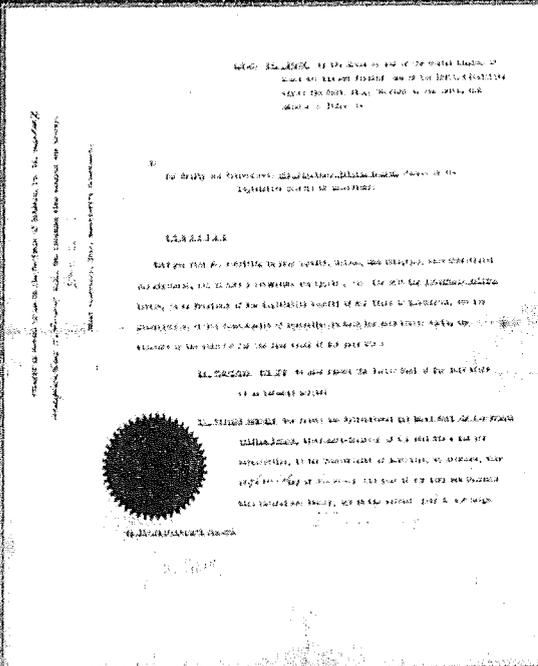

The process of abolition was set in train once more in 1918 with a Constitution Act Amendment Bill being passed by the Assembly but rejected by the Legislative Council. In August 1919, the Bill was introduced a second time into the Assembly but again rejected by the Council. However, while a referendum was the next step, it was never taken. It seems that the political preference was to achieve a Labor majority in the Council and not risk failure again in a referendum.

Premier Ryan retired from the Queensland Parliament in 1919 leaving the way for a vigorous and staunch abolitionist, E. G. Theodore. William Lennon, the Labor Speaker of the Assembly, was appointed Lieutenant-Governor in the temporary absence of the Governor.

'Enter the People'

On 19 February 1920, as Lieutenant-Governor, Lennon appointed 14 new members to the Legislative Council to give Labor a majority in the Upper House.

lennon appoints lennon

*Your Excellency, Be Seated!
Cartoon appearing in The Brisbane Courier, 1920.*

Your Excellency, Be Seated!

Minute appointing William Lennon as President of the Legislative Council, signed by William Lennon.

On the death of Legislative Council President William Hamilton in 1920, the Theodore Government – through the Lieutenant-Governor, of course – had the power to appoint William Lennon as President of the Legislative Council. However, it would not have been appropriate if William Lennon, Lieutenant-Governor, called William Lennon to the Council and appointed himself President!

Accordingly, Lennon conveniently suffered a sore knee and was sent across the border to the Tweed in New South Wales to recuperate. The Chief Justice was called upon to act as Administrator. However, he flatly refused to sign the Executive Minute on the ground that there were already far too many members of the Legislative Council. Nonetheless, the Minute appointing William Lennon as President of the Council was eventually signed by William Lennon.

Abolition of the Legislative Council was again part of the Labor Party's election platform in the October 1920 election campaign. The Country Party supported abolition and replacement with an elected body with restrictive property franchise using proportional representation. The Nationalists did not agree with abolition at all, fearing that once gone the Council would never be restored. However, they supported making the Council elective.

Behind the scenes, Premier Theodore was reassured that objection from London to Royal Assent to an abolition Bill was unlikely and that colonial legislatures were 'masters of their own destiny'. Labor won the 1920 election narrowly and Premier Theodore believed he had the mandate to proceed with his plans for abolition of the Legislative Council.

"To our Trusty and Well-beloved
The Honourable William Lennon, Member of the Legislative Council of Queensland.

Greeting,

Know you that We, confiding in your loyalty, wisdom, and integrity, have constituted and appointed ... you, the said the Honourable William Lennon to be President of the Legislative Council of our State of Queensland ..."

WILLIAM LENNON

Extract from Executive Minute appointing William Lennon as President of the Legislative Council.

abolition...finally

Mr E.G. Theodore, Premier from 22 October 1919 to 26 February 1925

ABOLITION OF QUEENSLAND'S LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL. The Labor Representatives who Accomplished the Task.

The Labor representatives who accomplished the task of abolition of the Legislative Council. Photo, The Worker, 16 March 1923, p.11

On 24 October 1921 the Constitution Act Amendment Bill was introduced into the Legislative Assembly for the fourth time. In his second reading speech, Premier Theodore argued –

With regard to the Labor party's attitude in connection with the Legislative Council – the Hon. member for Bulimba wanted to know whether the Legislative Council was not now merely an echo of this Chamber. That is all it is, and that is why I say it is useless. If it is not an echo, it is an evil because it is obstructive. If it is an echo, it is no longer necessary.

As the Bill went into Committee, Opposition hecklers called out 'Russia! Russia!' an obvious reference to the recent takeover of that country by the Communists. But the second clause of the Bill, the one that dealt specifically with the abolition of the Council, was passed 51-15. The third reading had a similarly easy passage.

The Bill then moved into the Legislative Council, where the Hon A J Jones, Secretary for Mines and the only Cabinet member in the Council, introduced the abolition Bill for the third time in his political career. He said –

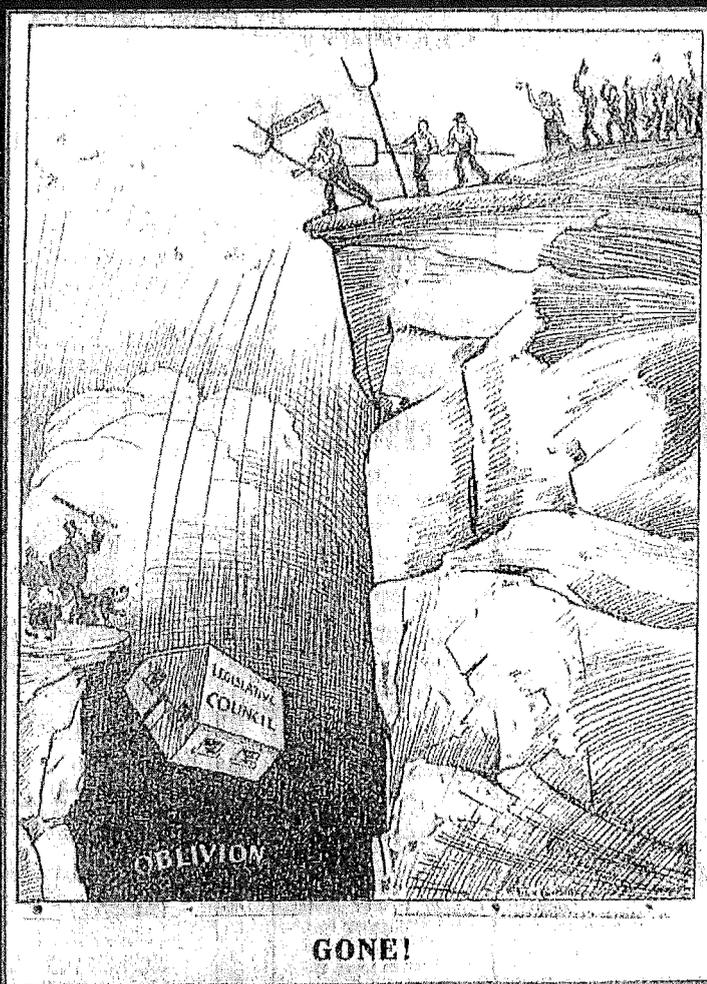

To-day we advocate the abolition of the Council because of its uselessness. ... Until we had a majority here, it was obstructive, and now that we have a majority here it is useless.

Only 40 of the 56 Council members bothered attending the beginning of the debate and two left before the end when the Bill was passed by 28 votes to 10. After the conclusion of the third reading, Leahy commented bravely and inaccurately that "the day was not far distant when, phoenix-like, the Council would rise from its ashes and be restored."

The Council met for the last time on the afternoon of 27 October 1921, adjourning at 8.37 pm that evening.

If we abolish this Chamber, and we have only a single Chamber, that other Chamber will be able to do what it thinks fit – it will be able to prolong the life of Parliament indefinitely, raise their salaries to even 2000 pounds, prevent the Auditor-General giving us reports, control the Judiciary, and carry out the instructions of the Labour conferences.

Hon PJ Leahy, Opposition,
Second Reading Debate, Constitution
Act Amendment Bill, 26 October 1921,
Queensland Parliamentary Debates

The Worker, 3 November 1921, p. 1.

gone!

The opponents to abolition did not give up the fight and appealed through the Governor to the British Government by Memorial and Petition to intervene before the Bill was given Royal Assent.

In the Petition, former Councillors argued that the abolition "intimately affects the Federal relationship with the Commonwealth of Australia and ... is a matter of Imperial concern."

Premier Theodore presented a Memorandum to the Governor containing his observations on the Memorial and Petition. He listed the many Bills that had been mutilated or rejected by the Council since Labor had been elected. He affirmed "It is not a fact historically that the bicameral system with a nominee chamber has worked satisfactorily in Queensland", and that "the principles of the Bill do not in any way impinge on Imperial interests."

Governor Nathan forwarded all the documents to the British Secretary of State for the Colonies (and future British Prime Minister) Mr Winston Churchill. In doing so, Governor Nathan commented "... I am unable to say that there is evidence of any very strong or widespread feeling in the country against this assent being given."

Royal Assent was given on 3 March 1922 and the Act was proclaimed on 23 March 1922.

With the abolition of the Legislative Council, the most important single constitutional reform in Queensland history had been accomplished, and, in the words of the historian Dr D J Murphy (1980), 'the dominance of wealth and property over the Queensland parliament' was broken.

After careful consideration of all the circumstances, I cannot but regard the matter with which the Bill deals as essentially one for determination locally.

Mr Winston Churchill to King George V, Queensland Parliamentary Papers, 1922.1, pp. 21-65.

attempts to restore the legislative council

The theme of this float in the Labour Day procession of 1923 was the Nationalist and Country Parties' promise to restore the Legislative Council.

Photo: Labor in Power: The Labor Party and Governments in Queensland 1915-57, 1980, D. J. Murphy, R. B. Joyce and Colin A. Hughes (eds), p. 110.

Re-establishment remained a feature of the election platforms of the anti-Labor parties. In 1929, the Country Party prepared a draft Bill providing for the restoration of the Legislative Council without going to a referendum, but containing a provision preventing the Bill from being amended or repealed unless a referendum was held.

In 1934, however, through the Constitution Act Amendment Bills, Premier Forgan Smith's Labor Government removed any threat that the Legislative Council would (or could) be revived. The Opposition forces boycotted the Bill, sitting coldly and silently throughout the second-reading debate.

In more recent times, consideration of the consolidation and review of the Queensland Constitution has been undertaken by:

- the Electoral and Administrative Review Commission (1993),
 - the Parliamentary Committee for Electoral and Administrative Review (1993-94),
 - the Parliamentary Legal, Constitutional and Administrative Review Committee (1996-2000),
- and
- the Queensland Constitutional Review Commission (1999-2000).

The Exposure Draft Constitution of Queensland 2001, recently released by the Queensland Government, consolidates and modernises existing constitutional provisions. However, entrenched provisions, such as s 3 of the 1934 Constitution Act Amendment Act, which cannot be repealed or amended without the approval of the electors at a referendum will remain.

In 1934, the Parliament passed the Constitution Act Amendment Act. Section 3 provided that the Legislative Council could not be restored without the approval of the electors at a referendum (entrenchment).