Yes, we agree for Castle Law because people have had enough home invaders entering their properties and homes without these people being held accountable for their actions. All criminals need to be held accountable for their own actions and dealt with accordingly by the courts. Baiting of animals shouldn't be a slap on the hand, kids carrying knives (concealed weapon) needs to be address with security and the public, terrorising people in there own home should be outlawed as people need to feel safe in there own home and property. If something isn't done people might just put the law in their own hands as it's already happened. I don't like leaving my teenager child home alone when I'm at work because of a fear of being invaded and attacked when I'm not home and it'll take me 10mins to get home if she calls me from work one way. The government need to make it safe again for Queenslanders to live in their own home and property where we can use reasonable force to move people on.
