I should be entitled to protect my house, belongings and children with any means necessary. We don't have guns and don't need them, but with kids getting away with stealing from me and others is getting out of hand. The police have no actual policing powers, they are taken to task over the smallest thing. I pay your wage? Yes and I pay the wages of these kids parents? Yes, why should I have to fork out more money for [REDACTED] that refuse to adhere to laws and common decency, my sister is out of pocket 40k for the loss of her car, and she pays the wages for this to happen. To say I'm [REDACTED] off is accurate, if I caught wind one of my kids was doing this they would get a [REDACTED] wake up call I tell ya. I refuse to pay for people that refuse to show some damn respect for what I have worked my [REDACTED] off literally to have. Why should I? The sooner the government acknowledges that the better! We pay your wages do your [REDACTED] job. We're a community in utter stress and despair due to the lack of action of government and tying our hands like we're the criminals. Do this do that blah blah blah to make your home safe. It's locked [REDACTED] it is supposed to be safe. I don't need to live in prison because they have free reign over the neighbourhood. I can and will always protect what is mine, with or without changes to the laws. This includes my neighbours as well. So step up or step out, I'm done paying for useless people. Don't like a service shop elsewhere they say, and I most certainly will.
