Making people accountable for the actions and mistakes of others is not reasonable and it is not the answer. Imagine if politicians were held accountable for the actions and poor choices of their family or colleagues? Would that be reasonable or acceptable? I doubt it. The concept of law abiding citizens having their firearms license revoked or hindered when a family member commits an offence or offends someone else with their opinion is totally unacceptable. Australia should not be acting like a dictatorship. Government should shift their gun control focus to criminal gangs and focus more on knife crime. Any reasonable government would take a responsible approach to gun ownership management rather than knee jerk reaction to please the anti gun lobby. Responsible firearms owners have to jump through several hoops already and they take the responsibility seriously. We shouldn't be treated like criminals because of our sport, recreation and pest control work.
