Thank you for reading my email

I object to the watered down bill you are currently talking about, will you allow this bill to evict people without explanation and there's no access to a legal appeal process?

Furthermore most renters have very little spare cash to be able to pay two bonds. As you are aware the current system allows the evicting agent or owner to take their time over the decision that the first bond can be reimbursed by the Rental Bond Authority. The process is time consuming so why can't the R B A authorise the payment from one rental agent/owner to the next by the simple expedient of the agents & the renter signing a R B A form?
