Committee Secretary,

I object to the extension of the Qld Health bill that divides Queenslanders and encourages segregation.

This is a very low time in our history.

Our Queensland.

An old lady was standing with her groceries waiting for the rain to stop.

It hadn't so she went into the coffee shop and bought a cup of coffee. She left the shop with her coffee and looked for a dry bench to sit on, in front of the supermarket. There wasn't any so she stood for sometime, waiting.

She looked at all the empty chairs outside the coffee shop but knew they were off limits. She finally plucked up the courage to sit in the dry chair, furthest from the shop-front, to drink her coffee, and wait.

A young man in waiter's attire came out and told her, if you haven't got your green tick you can't sit there.

So the old woman dutifully got to her feet and proceeded out into the pouring rain, with her groceries.

This happened in Qld Australia, 2022.
