Re: Public Health and Other Legislation (Extension of Expiring Provisions) Amendment Bill 2022

Any further emergency powers are government overreach – they are not needed now, at this moment, let alone be extended for six months.

All over the world, other governments are dropping ALL MANDATES, so why does Queensland Government not want to follow suit? This pandemic is over, we don't need further restrictions.

Recent data from studies into covid cases, prove that double and triple vaxxed people are spreading the virus, as also can the unvaccinated. What should have been a person's personal choice whether or not to receive the vaccination, has found them being discriminated against and losing their jobs. The answer is to drop the mandates so people can get back to work and we all get on with life - there is enough going on in the world without this extra burden on people with restrictions in place that impact on their everyday lives.

The 'emergency powers' are no longer of any relevance now the borders are open

Yours sincerely

Gwen Atkinson
