Dear Representative,

Extending the emergency powers does not have the data to support its justification. Australian bureau of statistics has revealed that very few people actually died from Covid. In fact far less than the usual flu season.

I have had Covid and I barely noticed it. Instead this fear generation is an excuse to exercise undue control over citizens.

The public are waking up to the exaggeration perpetuated by the premier and the media.

They will revolt if pushed too far - as hard working and largely educated people have been stood down for a 'cold' (actually much less than a cold) and their desperation to survive and feed their families will have nothing to lose from revolting against this dictatorship.

End this rubbish immediately.

Lisa Clarkson
