Subject: Stop the proposed extension of emergency powers while you are still in government

Dear Committee,

The proposed Extension of the Emergency Bill is scientifically, morally, and ethically indefensible. It is a purely socio-political measure designed to retain your control over the population of Queensland.

Some commonly-known facts for your consideration:

- A former Chief Medical Officer of Australia recently pointed out the obvious fact that the Omicron variant of SARS-CoV2 was less deadly than influenza in any given year.
- The original Emergency Bill in Queensland was enacted on a projected death rate from the Alpha and Delta variants (which never eventuated).
- The modelling of most COVID scenarios has been deliberately inflated to drive fear into the population and achieve compliance with “public health” measures.
- The extension of emergency powers in Queensland is based on COVID deaths and case numbers, but even publicly available data now shows clearly the politically-motivated exaggeration of such data.

In case you are interested, I can supply references for the above and many more facts pertaining to COVID and “public health” measures.

Numerous restrictions and vaccination mandates are being completely wound back in the UK and the USA, because governments there are now focused on damage control and maintaining their power. Extending emergency powers at this point in the “pandemic” is the equivalent of political suicide.

We, the people, will require a reckoning.

Janne Rytönen
