

Education (General Provisions) (Helping Families with School Costs) Amendment Bill 2023

Submission No: 24
Submitted by: Danyel Wolff
Publication: Making the submission and your name public

Attachments:

Submitter Comments:

In the past 10 years private school funding increases have doubled that of public schools. The money for education is not going to those most in need. This is creating a culture of rich elites whose children will be greater advantaged to access higher education than those from poorer families. In the longer term this perverse policy of inequitable distribution, will be to the detriment of our society. Lack of social mobility means disaffected youth will have no hope of improving their circumstances. Expect an increase in overall crime. Public school teachers receive no financial incentive to continue teaching in overcrowded, out of control classrooms. We need to better support these teachers. As a parent of a public school student I am also a long term tax payer. I object that public funds (my money) is increasingly invested in the private school sector for the benefit of wealthier families.