Whilst it important that students are supported at schools, whether they by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander or SWD students, student behaviour and safety is a serious problem in schools. Making these changes without the supports in place for these children is a mistake. Staff are being hurt every day and tying the hands of principals further is going to increase the teacher shortage and increase safety concerns in schools. Put these changes into place once staff are safe at school and you will have a lot more support for it.
