As a homeschooling parent I feel the concept of education cannot be a 'one size fits all' approach, which is why many parents opt for homeschooling. This allows us to tailor education to our children's individual learning styles. Imposing the Australian Curriculum on homeschoolers would not yield positive results; instead, it would harm our children's education. Personally, we chose homeschooling because my son struggled significantly within the traditional system due to his learning disabilities. Forcing him, and others like him, to adhere to conventional methods would only hinder their progress and diminish their enthusiasm for learning, and will not create a 'high quality education'. I oppose these proposed changes.
