Dear Committee Members,

I hope this message finds you well. As a homeschooling parent, I wanted to share my perspective regarding the proposed alignment of homeschooling studies with the Curriculum.

While I appreciate the intention to ensure access to a high-quality education for all children, I must respectfully express my concern about the potential limitations this alignment may impose.

For example, if I were to align my children's studies with only the Curriculum, it would hinder their exploration of other advanced subjects. They have shown a keen interest and aptitude in certain areas, and we believe that providing them with the freedom to pursue advanced studies in a few subjects from a young age will open doors to exciting opportunities for their future.

As a parent who has been homeschooling for over ten years, my experience has shown me that every child's learning style is unique, showing different interests and talents and each child deserves access to a high-quality education, but this does not necessitate uniformity in educational approaches. It is essential to recognize and celebrate this diversity by providing avenues for personalized learning experiences that align with each child's individual needs and aspirations.

Thank you for your attention to this important issue.

Sincerely,
