Homeschooling is just another option for education and just as valuable an effective as any other mainstream model. It is common knowledge that the current mainstream model is broken in so many ways, due mostly in part to its over-regulation. Don't ruin the homeschooling model by doing the same. Parents only have their children's best interests at heart, more than any system ever will! Homeschooling parents sacrifice a lot to provide an exceptional learning environment for their children, it is not up to a system to "allow" them to do this the way they please.
