Dear Committee, I object to the proposed changes to QLD home schooling. I'm currently homeschooled in QLD. I didn't cope in the school. I have asd and adhd. Teachers always said I was naughty and yelled at me. When I struggled with emotional regulation because class rooms are too nosy there are too many kids and I just can't focus cause there's too much going on. I got sent home and suspended a lot. And lots of times I'd get sent to sec (naughty kids class). Now I am homeschooled - I don't learn the Australian Curriculum but my mum wrote a plan that suits my best interests. I learn better at home I have a special room I helped create and lots of resources. We do maths/English every day. I love learning now and we focus on topics I want to learn about. I have even started my own business and attend homeschool markets this is stuff I wouldn't be able to do if I was at school. The best part is I can learn at times where I'm more focused. Not times that the Government says I should have to learn. I hope you all read these and understand that our parents/carers give us a very high standard of learning. Thank you from [REDACTED] 11yrs old
