It is the states responsibility to protect the freedoms of its citizens. We use Queenslanders have little right of appeal due to the lack of Senate in our state. This proposed legislation changes to homeschooling is an infringement on the rights of those who do not agree wholeheartedly with the states view on how education should be ran. In a world of subjective reality that you nearly all appeal to, this top down approach of one position for everyone is an infringement on citizens rights. The right of people holding different views to teach their children according to their beliefs, must be protected and as always the insistence on “what if it was the other way around” view must be held the endless assault by the government upon the rights of parents in the past eight years has been unprecedented.
