Choice of education program should be left with parents to make the decision about where or how their children are educated. State school education is failing many students, leaving them lacking in the skills required to move from high school education to the workplace or further education opportunities. Taking this decision making ability away from parents is another freedom being removed by unelected government officials who do not have the best interests of families, students or their true education needs as foremost and important. Home schooling, private education and faith-based schooling must continue to be options for parents to choose as educational settings for their children.
