Submitter Comments:

My name is [REDACTED] and I'm 9 years old, and have always been homeschooled. I've heard that the homeschool rules are going to change and I'm writing to you to tell you why I do not want this to happen. I do not want to use ACARA in my Home education. I feel that the curriculum would limit my education because I'm ahead in some subjects, but the curriculum would limit what I'm learning. I learn best if I'm interested in what I'm learning, and I like to do things that have real life impact. When I have an interest, I like to find out the most I can about it, which can take me on a learning journey of several weeks or months. If I had to follow the national curriculum, I wouldn't be able to learn the way that works for me. I understand that the curriculum works for schools because there's lots of children in the same room, but when I'm learning, it's just my sister and me and my mum can help us with our interest based learning. My mum was a teacher before I was born and she knows how to teach us the best way for us. One of the best things about home education is that it doesn't look like school and we want it to stay that way! Thank you for reading my submission. I hope that you listen to the people that this will affect.
