I do NOT agree with the proposed changes to home schooling. I feel that following my child and learning through her interests is the best way to educate her because when she was in a mainstream school environment and following the Australian curriculum she was unable to learn at her full potential due to being held back by her teachers upholding the curriculum policies. Even efforts to have her grade skipped were unsuccessful due to the policies, even despite her teachers believing she would be capable of the work. Since commencing home schooling I have witnessed my child flourish in her love for learning, by being in control of what she learns, how she learns and even in the environment that she learns in.
