To whomever may concern,

I oppose the proposed changes to home schooling in qld.

I attended public school and the Australian curriculum provided me with zero skills to help me gain a job and be independent. How are our children supposed to be the upstanding citizens they are expected to become when the Australia curriculum does nothing but hinder thier growth and shove them in a one size fits all category. This does not help anyone, no wonder youth crime is sky rocketing. These children do not receive the time or nurturing to reach thier full potential in our current public and private school system. Learning should be interest based helping these children find thier passion for learning.

Ever wondered why so many people homeschool around Australia?
Because the Australian curriculum is terrible, the teachers are burnt out from teaching this boring, outdated curriculum and the children rebel and take thier frustrations out on society. The curriculum is creating monsters.
So why don't you turn your attention to the real problem.

Homeschooling is wholesome and the kids that are homeschooled turn out to be far more advanced in every aspect than thier peers that attend school.

Every single child is different, learns differently and have different capabilities.
The Australian curriculum doesn't cater for these differences.

Instead of regulating the homeschooling community, that are very capable of providing a better education than your schooling system. You need to take a serious look at your Australian curriculum instead and the negligence of your schools that have detrimental effects on the young people that attend them. This is the next generation, when your elderly would you rather traumatised angry youth rule your community or nurtured intelligent and kind youth.

Take a look at the big picture of things and address the real problem here.

Homeschooled children explore thier passions, further thier education by attending university or tafe and find jobs that not everyone is capable of doing because they have learnt those skills in a home environment and had the time to pursue thier passions instead of being pressured to get A grades on useless tests.

The system is broken, the curriculum needs to change not the Homeschooling.

Learn more about homeschooling and the students that are homeschooling because the schools need to change and to take on a more adaptive approach.

Id like my personal information omitted from the submission please
