I am writing to let you know I do not agree with proposed changes to homeschooling in QLD. My son is ASD with a PDA profile. He is a very intelligent boy but needs a very relaxed style of school program. This is currently provided to us through the school he currently attends. Even with these accommodations that the school makes, he is struggling with his mental health.

We know that we may have to homeschool him soon.

We will need to be very flexible with his learning if it comes to this. He will be more likely to thrive in homeschooling if we go with his interests first and guide him towards the current curriculum. Trying to push him to stick to a curriculum.

Do t hesitate to call me in [REDACTED]
