Dear Education Committee,

I am 8 years old and my mom moved me to home education last year early in the year. Since moving to home education, I am not afraid to have ago. I hate school, they didn't help me but made me sad and scared. I know that there were mean things said about me especially in front of me and I can only tell that because my mum was extremely upset.

Please don't make me go back into school, I love home education my therapists and my mum do a lot for me and I will never go back.

I can't spell good and I can't write properly either so my mum is helping me with this and I am saying my feelings. Since hearing about what the government wanting I have become scared and absolutely feel yucky that I could be made to return. I have what mummy calls the alphabet of superpowers accept with all superpowers there are weaknesses and they are sitting still, and learning like others.

Do you know that I can now read a level 5 and I am 8. I couldn't have done that without my mum, therapist and tutor they have helped me to start reading I like not being free to learn what I want I have just started an introductory to anime drawing as I love drawing.

Please think about what you are going to be doing to not only me but others like me that can't learn like others. Mum says we all learn differently but schools won't allow different learning. Please allow me to stay with home educating.

Thanks
