Dear Committee Members, I am writing to express my disappointment with the proposed changes to homeschooling legislation. It seems that in drafting these changes, the voices and perspectives of homeschooling families, as well as former teachers who have chosen this path, have been overlooked and ignored. As a grandparent to a homeschooled child, I can attest to the deep commitment and dedication her parents have towards her education. They have made this choice after careful consideration and believe it is the best option for their daughters learning and development. Moreover, many former teachers have chosen to leave traditional curriculum-based schools precisely because they found the system to be inadequate in meeting the diverse needs of students. Their insights and experiences could provide valuable input into any proposed changes to homeschooling regulations. I urge you to reconsider these proposed changes and engage in meaningful dialogue with homeschooling families and former teachers who have opted for this educational path. Only by listening to their perspectives can we ensure that any changes to homeschooling legislation are truly beneficial for all involved. Thank you for your attention to this matter. Sincerely, Glen Milgate Proud Grandfather
