Free choice for my family to choose our own curriculum is important as members of our church. We also choose to homeschool because it is a flexible approach to learning, which is important for our children's needs, who struggled in the public school system. One of my children struggles with academia, so being able to be there for them and assist any time they need is very important. One of my other children struggles with anxiety, and is blossoming in home education, they are well supported by friends, family and the church. If we are forced to teach our children values which don't align with ours, I believe it may lead my children to make poor decisions based on subjects taught in the public school system/ curriculum. For example Sex education. My own experiences growing up, because of attending public school, and no church to support me, I feel I made poor decisions of my future and only turned my life around when attending church.
