Submitter Comments:

I would like to submit my opinion that the homeschooling curriculum should be the responsibility of the parents to decide what is best for their children. and that homeschooling is not to be subject to a national homeschool curriculum which is based at a classroom standard. In observation of children I know who are homeschooled they are ahead of the public school curriculum in all areas while not being subjected to bullying or having to participate in activities contrary to the parents values. Please keep homeschooling in its present system and let the children excel in their safe, secure home environment of the parent who obviously cares greatly for their child to commit to the task. Thank you, Milly Hancock.
