I am not in favour of the proposed legislation changes to home schooling. There is an increasing number of Australian parents who feel the current curriculum falls well short of what is required for their children to reach their full potential in knowledge, skills, leadership and social development.

Every parent does have the right to home school their children, they have the child's best interest at heart. The current legislation is fit for purpose, unelected beurocrats have failed to recognise the positives of this legally recognised alternative to schooling and seem to have a fervent desire to legislate it to a point of total Government control.
