My name is [REDACTED], I'm 14 and I have already begun my tertiary education in Science with TAFE. I believe that the changes being proposed to Home Education would mean that kids will not be able to align their education with what they want their future careers to look like. If I were to have to align my learning with the Australian Curriculum, I can say with 100% certainty that I would not be studying Science right now. I would be made to study subjects below my current level, and I really do feel this would be detrimental to and delay my future. I respect the initiative of the Government of Queensland for trying to help improve childrens education, however I believe that these proposed changes will be detrimental to the future of home educated children and not in our best interests.
