To whom it may concern, Today I write this in strong objection to the proposed changes to homeschooling in Queensland. My wife and I have been homeschooling parents for nine years. I have loved watching the positive changes for my child. The way it is now has let our child grow in such an incredible way. As parents that were new to homeschooling, the support we received was and still is really helpful. There are so many resources available to families and due to this we have been able to provide a very high quality education to our child. I strongly urge you to consider all the homeschooling families that are thriving in this current structure. Thank you. Regards Adam Bower
