Good day There is government involvement and interference in every part of our lives in Australia. Our "freedom" is controlled by government, yet isn't the government ELECTED to serve the people? The current home schooling system works very well, and if parents choose this option, then it's an indicator of concerns with the government schooling system and curriculum. The changes in societal standards that are legislated by government are the reason our society is self destructing. The line between right and wrong has been blurred , with right being overruled. Parents who home school are likely doing so because they believe in "right" and disagree with the changed public school curriculum - and evidence shows that students are not learning well, dumbing them down?! oppose any changes where government intrudes into the home schooling system usurping parental choices for their children. Government should reflect on its intentions of taking control.
