Submitter Comments:

The proposed Bill presented and subsequent amendment should do nothing other than seek to make the quality of the learning experience performed through the vehicle of homeschooling more robust as a whole, free from any personal or current doctrina that the state or individuals may deem appropriate for households. Not only is this performative and disrupting for learning, it is, at its core, an invasion of the privacy of one's home and safe space, and therefore, I would strongly encourage alternatives to be sought, namely, excluding any and all references to current narrative discourse'.
