The current curriculum is lacking in comparison to other western countries. Our nations most recent results reflect this. There seems to be no accountability or direction to implement significant change from the education department. This feels like the first step to suppress a parent/parents right to home educate their children in accordance with what they know, as a parents, what is best for their own child. Parents are more invested in their child's education more so than a school that is being run as a business.
