Properly training police is extremely important, since it is a job dealing with public and carrying a firearm. Police should be respected and not feared. I do not believe enough is invested in police force, in regard to people skills, deescalation, and ability to engage without a weapon. Self improvement and physical training need to be highlighted. The public is not armed. That should be considered when training is given. The proposed and beyond, require a strong foundation in police officers, which would be a win-win. Dealing with public with mutual respect, providing all services with honour, is something we all can be proud of. Lack of providing proper training will generate unbalanced power to responsibly of the power
