World-wide history and far-reaching statistics have proved scores of times that any move towards legalising prostitution is harmful to women, harmful to children, and harmful to society. The person proposing this bill is clearly right out of touch with reality. What would the state stand to gain from such a foolish and harmful move? Is the proponent of the bill being heavily bribed by highly irresponsible men? I suggest a police investigation into the matter. This is not a bill aimed at improving the well-being of the people who live in Queensland, such as we would expect the Queensland Government to be interested in doing. We should throw out the bill, and throw out the person proposing it.
