Submitter Comments:

The act of decriminalising sex work has not been shown in other jurisdictions to improve the lives of sex workers, nor has it made their lives safer from exploitation. However, the laws enacted in some European countries (I think it is called the Nordic method - from Norway) has shown to be able to improve the lives of sex workers and to make their lives safer from exploitation. I recommend that Queensland follow the tried and effective legislation rather than to enact legislation that has failed elsewhere. Keith Benn
