Abortion - no good for women and deadly for children

I oppose any bill to further reduce restrictions on abortion in Queensland.

Abortion is an injustice to women and to children.

In any debate on such legislation, I ask that you pursue tighter regulation of the existing abortion industry to protect the rights of women and children, and the rights of consumers.

Injustice to women:

- Abortion increases risks of cancer, mental health problems, relationship problems and fertility problems for women.
- Women are not being advised of these risks with an opportunity to consider them before being “ushered” through a risky procedure.
- Women are not receiving post abortion support because the industry is not recognising the risks. Risks are therefor exacerbated due to lack of post traumatic procedure support.
- Women are not being informed about the stage of development of the baby they are having aborted or of the life long connection they have with the baby due to the babies DNA being in the mothers bloodstream and brain through microchimerism.
- There is no distinction in medical records between abortions and cures funded by tax payers so there is limited scope for medical researchers to investigate the risks of cancer, mental health problems, relationship problems and fertility problems for women after choosing an abortion.

Injustice for children:

- Unborn children are being discriminated against with parents already choosing abortion if there is even a chance of the baby not meeting “normal” specifications.
- Unborn children are being discriminated against for their gender with, for example, liberal abortion laws in Victoria leading to increasing numbers of female babies killed by abortion in some culture groups.
- Children are being killed in abortion procedures with no anaesthetic despite their capacity to feel pain and their exposure to brutal medical procedures (worse than the Indonesian slaughter of cattle or the middle east treatment of sheep but unborn human beings are not even given the right to a humane death).
- There is no auditable procedure for abortion providers to ensure all human remains are treated respectfully.
- There is no auditable procedure for abortion providers to account for body parts and organs of aborted babies ensuring they are not marketed for medical use or for research and pharmaceutical product testing as has been proved to happen in the United States.

Rights of consumers:

- As a parent, I am now being penalised financially by the Commonwealth Government for not using pharmaceutical products developed from

- aborted human beings (some immunisations).
- There is no duty of disclosure on pharmaceutical products developed with the use of aborted human beings so, as a consumer, I am prevented from making ethical choices.

Please oppose any proposed legislation to further erode the rights of women, children and consumers through liberalisation of abortion laws.

Regards,

Paul Webb
