I am writing to voice my total opposition to the extreme abortion law's proposed by Jackie Trad's bill.

If most Queenslanders even knew this bill was in the pipeline, which they don't, and also knew what it entailed, the outcry against it would be far greater than the thousands that marched in opposition to this bill on Saturday.

Queenslanders are in a state of disbelief that the right to destroy a child at such a late gestational stage would be acceptable to any person, but for Jackie Trad and co., it appears to not only be acceptable but highly desirable. What sort of a person makes this their life's work?

Her name and all those who support it will go down in history for all the wrong reasons if this Labor government passes this bill.

I would ask you to consider as well the mental health of women who have had abortions, and the toll it takes on society and the tax payer. As tax payers, we are asked to fund abortions and then provide the funding for women who are traumatised and trying to pick up the pieces afterwards.

[REDACTED] Before any person votes in favour of this bill, they should look at the details of a late term abortion, and understand the procedure, as well as listening to the testimonies of women who have had such a procedure and the trauma it has caused them, as well as abortionists who have got out of the industry, and are revealing its dirty secrets. The abortion industry rarely attracts doctors of a high calibre, and it is generally the dregs of the profession [REDACTED]

[REDACTED].
It is not easy to remove a living baby from a womb and I would expect that those voting on this bill, will inform themselves on the methods used to achieve this. There is no sweet and kind way to get the baby out. It doesn't miraculously happen that one moment there is a baby growing inside a mother, and then it is suddenly not there. It is a procedure that involves extreme brutality, pain, and a lot of brute force. Jackie Trad will be aware of the methods used, but for those MPs who are more innocent in this matter, please find out for yourselves before casting your vote.

Jackie Trad stated in an interview on Saturday, that these laws are over 100 years old, and need updating. How disingenuous to claim that because a law is old, it is no good. The Ten Commandments are thousands of years old and have worked well for society to date, but perhaps she thinks they need to go as well. Or perhaps you can dress this bill up in a rainbow also, and pretend that it is good for women and babies?

For the sake of our shared humanity, reject this bill!

Sincerely

Nicole and Stephen King
