Thanks for the opportunity to provide a brief submission.

Respectfully, the premises underlying your process seem to guarantee an outcome in favour of the interests of only one of the two persons your deliberations vitally concern.

In a trial a defendant is given the benefit of the doubt whereas the assumption behind these laws is that the child in the womb, who cannot yet make a submission, is not a person.

This is much worse than capital punishment!

Barbarism dressed up in fine clothing.

Respectfully

Graham Corney
