Women can hide a pregnancy for several months, the usual period that family members and partners pressure them to 'get rid of it'. But now the law fails to protect her and her baby.

Also, if she can choose to kill the child, let her choose to be the sole parent. That guy has no rights over the child's life or death, give her that choice. It's a real choice.

I object to being given responsibility for someone other than myself. So many decisions to make and so many people pushing me this way and that. This child is alive, support me, help me ... don't inflict me with making a decision that does not belong to me.

Choose well people and get on the right side of history in this.
