Subject: Change to Abortion Laws in Queensland
Date: Monday, 27 June 2016 9:03:49 AM

Dear Sir / Madam, I have heard recently that the Queensland Government is wanting to pass a law that babies can be aborted up to full term. Unborn babies do not have a voice to speak so I will speak on their behalf.

The world is up in arms when a gorilla is shot dead. People are jailed and / or fined for cruelty to animals, and yet we are silent when it comes to our own human kind. Mothers who do not want children should either use contraception or adopt their children out to parents who cannot have children.

Unborn babies should not be cruelly killed in their mothers' wombs by saline injections or pulled apart piece by piece while they are struggling inside for their lives, experiencing unimaginable pain. Some others are even delivered and left on tables to die alone. This is abhorrent!!

It's interesting that when mothers discover they are pregnant they refer to their unborn child as a "baby" but when a mother doesn't want her child it's a "fetus". Premature babies now survive outside the womb at 23 weeks and go on to live fulfilled happy lives.

The unborn child should not suffer for the decision or the lifestyle of the parent. I am totally against abortion, but particularly up to full term. Please think of the unborn child when considering changes in these laws.

Thanking you for your time.

Janelle Williams
