The unborn babies have just as much right to life as the babies that have been born.

The problem I believe is that people don't think that their actions don't have consequences.

A man and a woman having intercourse may lead to a baby being conceived. That baby from conception is a living being.

The question is really to answer. If you don't want baby, don't have sex, and the babies conceived out of the rape and the mother does not want the baby when born then it should be adopted by couples who will love the baby.
