My remarks about keeping Queensland and Australian laws within the confines of God's laws apply equally to the newly tabled abortion law reform suggestions. The surest way to ensure that Catholics and other people of good will completely disregard Queensland laws is to attempt to institute laws which directly conflict with God's laws - in this case "thou shalt not kill" (pre-born children). The Higher law, namely God's law, will always and everywhere take precedence over any contrary Queensland law. Do you really wish to incite civil disobedience - not only from Catholics - but also many other like-minded Queensland residents who value human life?

Yours faithfully
