To whom it may concern,

I would like to request that the Health Committee reject Mr Pyne's proposal to change Queensland laws regarding abortion. A person comes into existence at the moment of conception. The gametes cease to exist at this moment, and a new organism becomes present, a human person in the most early stages of his life. The propositions of the likes of Mr Pyne are not based on scientific or philosophical proofs but emotionalism, and laws should not be based on emotionalism. A person should have full protection under the law, and that includes a person at any stage of their life, whether that be as an embryo, as a foetus, as a neonate, as an infant, as a teenager, or as an adult. There are many reasons why the Bill should be rejected, but this one is particularly primary.
