To whom it may concern,

As I see Mr Pyne's new proposed bill for allowing abortion and any safeguards to full term, as a past nurse, mother and grandmother, I am but am in disbelief that anyone could believe the lie that abortion has no side effects! It does, partially to the mother's health physically and emotionally. But who has to live with the same secrets a army serviceperson with PTSD. Also why, when law considers it a joint murder if a pregnant woman is killed but it's not when it's an abortion? Pregnancy isn't fatal and very few pregnancies are life threatening or cannot be looked after within the health system.

We all have different reactions to life changing decisions of one's choices that affect our mental health, but that should not be proof enough to approve a killing on demand. There is the option to give up for adoption and this provision should be made more assessable for those who wait for years for a baby who cannot have their own. Not making people take responsibility for what's happened either it be a foolish choice, a rape or questionable babies' health, is not helping our society to grow up and be Real. Yes scientists and doctors have learnt many tricks to play games on controlling life, life span, and health but look at the cycle of history of all modern cultures in time past; When the morals declined and respect to their unborn declined so did the whole culture.

You may like to make yourself the 'God' to decide who lives and who dies but I sure wouldn't like to trust you for protection of my real welfare and my best interest in mind, if you regard these proposals for abortions as feasible. And somehow you're in government!?

Sincerely

Bronwyn Lamborn
