I believe outdoor advertising should be G-rated to protect our children from images and concepts they are not mature enough to be exposed to. Sexually explicit advertising should be kept to adults-only spaces like night clubs or late night television. At least with television we have the choice not to watch it. With outdoor billboards, we have no way to protect our children from some of the filth in these advertisements. We should not be forced to stay at home just to avoid this, families need to have the freedom to travel where they choose without being bombarded with rubbish. Please consider our children.
