The Government has a responsibility to protect the lives of every person in its premises whether elderly or newly born. Doctors and nurses are duty bound to save lives.

Any Government that allows any living person to deliberately die by denying them the means of survival is guilty of callous neglect.

I urge the committee to recommend that the Parliament pass this legislation and I have to say that I cannot believe that anyone elected to Parliament would be callous enough to leave a newborn human being to die unattended in a hospital or to legislate that hospital staff should do that.

Dear members of the committee,

My name is [REDACTED], I am an elderly pensioner and I live in Brisbane.

I am appalled that live babies who have survived an abortion can be left unattended to die. I cannot imagine the pain and suffering they must endure before death, especially in a hospital, a place constructed to care and protect human lives.

Sincerely, [REDACTED]
