I will be deeply ashamed of Australia and the Government if we fail to pass this legislation. Future decades will look harshly upon us for our hardness of heart to those who should be our most precious treasure - our children. Failing to pass this legislation would be a failure to uphold human dignity and the common good. I urge the committee to recommend that Parliament pass this legislation, showing mercy to those who are most vulnerable and innocent. What crime did this baby commit to deserve a death sentence? I am [REDACTED], [REDACTED] and I am an academic. It is deeply unconscionable for our society to refuse care for babies who are born alive. This baby has the same rights and human dignity as any other human person and failing to treat them as human beings should be illegal and criminal. What crime did this baby commit to deserve the death penalty? It is the most fundamental responsibility of Government to protect its citizens, including those who are most vulnerable.

Sincerely, [REDACTED]
