Greetings, I'm [REDACTED], retired and residing in [REDACTED].
Human life is precious and we in this country should do all we can to protect it.
We rely on our elected Government to protect the wellbeing of all us including those unable to speak up for themselves. To think that in this age given the advantages and advances in medical care that we should even consider such a move is incomprehensible in the extreme.
Australia seen international as a country that shows little compabction or care for it's people treating newborn babies which are living humans with utter disregard. We would be requiring the medical profession to perform against the oath of preserving life.
Please, please, may I put before you with the upmost respect that it is totally unacceptable to not give medical care to a living person. We should be preserving life which is fundamental to a civilized community. Thank you so much for taking the time to read this, [REDACTED]

Sincerely, [REDACTED]
