Public Submission by Angela.

My name is Angela I live in Redcliffe I am a citizen and resident of Queensland Australia still working in an administrative capacity in various industries.
My personal belief is that all life is valid and valuable. Every single life form matters. I believe there are human beings who would love and cherish the born alive during abortion babies. I find it extremely hard to accept that a living being is disregarded and not heard when it is left to die. [REDACTED].
[REDACTED]. Some would say this baby has no voice, but it does - the breath, the murmur, the gurgle, the sound - anyone who could discount that as a cry for help just isn't abcdhomable. I can't imagine the shock, guilt, distress this would put on the staff required to do this but to me its traumatic for the baby and abortionist. I see the babies as a newborn Australian and God knows we need more and more people in our country, but these living beings are not given the chance to be held, loved and grow in the best Country in the world. If we gave these babies to other Australians waiting for a readymade family, they would at least have the chance to live .. more than they are receiving currently.
Why wouldn't a government include protecting these precious living beings? We rightfully provide protection to so many other life forms, yet these babies are cast out like rubbish, trash, a piece of garbage. I am sickened that I have to even accept this position from my voted in government. I basic right to life is taken off these babies - if it is a baby without "an owner" which I presume at that point the person carrying it has already decided - why can't the baby be given a chance to be loved and brought up by people who are longing for a child. It's making our land of plenty seem so arrogant that it can add babies to the great waste we have in our lives. It seems we do more to recycle plastic than we do to recycle babies.
This legislation will add to the "people" aspect into the democracy we claim to live in. I have to live in and under the law of my land but if this fails to pabcd, I personally will be very distressed. I will never be happy with the choice to live and let die.
Lastly as a proud Australian citizen and a grateful Queensland resident I am hoping many people will openly support the request for this legislation and am praying hard that someone has a deep and meaningful conscience about what is happening here.

Sincerely, Angela
