To Whom It May Concern,

Thank you for seeking feedback on the above.

Is the purpose of this legislation to protect the provider, consumer, or government? These measures are easily exploited. The content is so broad, does it even have relevance to priority areas of health regarding people's welfare?

Is a change of law potentially covering up for staff wrongdoing? Is legal representation for mentally ill patients an admission of a broken system which takes its direction from a court?

The environment is more likely contaminated with secrecy of reporting requirements. Where is the transparency and support reforms needed to facilitate primary producers?

Enforcing schools to forward private information on students without parental consultation must be considered unlawful.

Consenting to wide-reaching movement of patient information and human body parts has major consequences written all over it. Law is not enacted successfully until it is demonstrated that the intent of legality is motivated by integrity.

Fluoridation of public waterways is a serious matter and gives cause for publication of when and where this is taking place, so should remain accountable as within current processes.

Yours truly,

Dorothy Long
