To Who It May Concern. This legislation needs to be acted on and implemented as a matter of priority and urgency. With all the advancements in society, technology and the medical field surely in the year of 2021 those that are the decision makers have the guts and temerity to stop sitting on their hands and finally bring Queensland and the wider Australian population into line with world wide forward thinking on this subject. The old age thinking of not allowing our animals to suffer is a very humane and well worn scenario that is an absolute must when they are badly injured or terminally ill. The time has come for this to be the norm for humans too and allow us to have the same priviledge. We as a society should have every right to choose our passing and not have to suffer the indignity of having a painful and long drawn out inevitable death that in the long run leaves huge emotional scaring on families which they NEVER get over. The time has come for this to be a reality for those that wish to go down this path without fear or favour from those that wish to oppose the decision. This is something that is long over-due SO come on, get a sense of decency about you Queensland Parliamentarians and do the right thing by your constituents.
